

Chris Sitton

Initially self-taught, I recently received my formal art education with an art degree from Montana State University. Originally from Florida, I started out drawing from an early age which later helped me when I worked for the State of Florida as an Illustrator. From there I have broadened my approach in media to include painting, photography, ceramics, sculpture, and jewelry design.

I have enjoyed creating art since childhood. More recently I enjoy the beautiful Montana scenery where I now live and enjoy recording it through various mediums.

There is something so calming and meditative about being out in nature for me and I endeavor to share some of that personal experience with you through my work. I find inspiration from the beauty of all that surrounds me. My hope is that you find as much joy in my work as I have had in creating them.
